Chartered Accountancy - at a glance

The global economy is facing a growing and pressing shortage of qualified professional accountants—a crisis that is becoming increasingly apparent in both developed and developing nations.

According to multiple global and local industry reports, the demand for accountants continues to outpace supply. In Malaysia, the national target of producing 60,000 professional accountants by 2030 still faces significant challenges, especially in attracting and retaining young talent into the profession. Factors such as the perception of accounting as a traditional or rigid career path, the lure of tech-related jobs, and a lack of awareness about the global mobility and leadership opportunities a professional accountancy qualification offers have all contributed to this talent gap.

This shortage is not merely an academic concern—it has real and lasting impacts on business confidence, financial integrity, and national economic resilience. Professional accountants are at the heart of sound financial decision-making, corporate governance, sustainability reporting, and risk management. Without a robust pipeline of qualified professionals, both private and public sectors are at risk of poor accountability and missed economic opportunities.

HOW TO BECOME CHARTERED

To become an ICAEW Chartered Accountant you must complete 450 days of on-the-job training alongside the study elements of the ACA qualification.
